Kentucky Accident Attorney Speaks Out Against Frivolous and Unnecessary Lawsuits

In continuation of my ethical watchdog duties, I feel it is time to blow the whistle on poor attorney behavior once again. Ever wonder why it takes so long to handle a matter within the legal system? Well the news article on our site about the judge suing for 65 million dollars over a pair of pants is an answer to that question. To view the article, follow this link:

An attorney, much less a judge, who will sue for $65 million dollars over a pair of pants, is a prime example of why civil attorneys have the reputation they do. It absolutely infuriates me to see a public servant abuse their position in such a way. As a Kentucky Accident Attorney, it is my responsible to ensure the welfare of Kentucky's citizens. Not only does this type of behavior betray the citizens we are bound to protect, but it reflects poorly on our profession and peers.

In summation, I would like to take this time to distinguish myself from attorneys such as the attorney in the article. As a Kentucky Accident Attorney, it is my duty to make sure the injured and their families receive the care and compensation they deserve. As a car wreck attorney, it is NOT my responsibility to 'gum' up the justice system by bringing meaningless suits alleging millions in damages because my pants weren't cleaned within 24 hours of dropping them off.
